Open Educational Resources: Why They Have Yet to Reach Their Full Potential

More college students are taking advantage of open educational resources—textbooks and course materials that are free and can be altered and repurposed. Yet faculty adoption of OER, as it is known, is slow with significant barriers. For open-access materials to truly transform learning and teaching and help reduce educational costs for students, a greater effort may be needed to convince professors of its benefits.

More Students Are Using OER …

But Professors Haven’t Fully Embraced It …

… And New Players Are Supporting It

Percent of publishers that want to couple copyrighted textbooks with open materials 65%

$5 million
How much Congress recently set aside for an OER pilot

38
Number of community colleges now using OER to redesign degree programs

… And They Have Concerns

So, Will Faculty Attitudes Change?

THE KEY QUESTION FOR THE FUTURE OF OER IS:

What does it take to get more professors to Yes?

Open Educational Resources: Why They Have Yet to Reach Their Full Potential was written by Frieda Klotz. The Chronicle is fully responsible for the report’s editorial content. ©2018 by The Chronicle of Higher Education, Inc. All rights reserved. This material may not be reproduced without prior written permission of The Chronicle. For permission requests, contact us at copyright@chronicle.com.

more college students are taking advantage of open educational resources—textbooks and course materials that are free and can be altered and repurposed. yet faculty adoption of oer, as it is known, is slow with significant barriers. for open-access materials to truly transform learning and teaching and help reduce educational costs for students, a greater effort may be needed to convince professors of its benefits.

more students are using oer …

but professors haven’t fully embraced it …

… and new players are supporting it

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

65% 9%

2015-16 2016-17

5%

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

9%

65% percent of publishers that want to couple copyrighted textbooks with open materials

5 million how much congress recently set aside for an oer pilot

38 number of community colleges now using oer to redesign degree programs

65% percent of publishers that want to couple copyrighted textbooks with open materials

5 million how much congress recently set aside for an oer pilot

38 number of community colleges now using oer to redesign degree programs

… and they have concerns

so, will faculty attitudes change?

the key question for the future of oer is:

what does it take to get more professors to yes?

more college students are taking advantage of open educational resources—textbooks and course materials that are free and can be altered and repurposed. yet faculty adoption of oer, as it is known, is slow with significant barriers. for open-access materials to truly transform learning and teaching and help reduce educational costs for students, a greater effort may be needed to convince professors of its benefits.

more students are using oer …

but professors haven’t fully embraced it …

… and new players are supporting it

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

65% 9%

2015-16 2016-17

5%

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

9%

65% percent of publishers that want to couple copyrighted textbooks with open materials

5 million how much congress recently set aside for an oer pilot

38 number of community colleges now using oer to redesign degree programs

… and they have concerns

so, will faculty attitudes change?

the key question for the future of oer is:

what does it take to get more professors to yes?

more college students are taking advantage of open educational resources—textbooks and course materials that are free and can be altered and repurposed. yet faculty adoption of oer, as it is known, is slow with significant barriers. for open-access materials to truly transform learning and teaching and help reduce educational costs for students, a greater effort may be needed to convince professors of its benefits.

more students are using oer …

but professors haven’t fully embraced it …

… and new players are supporting it

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

65% 9%

2015-16 2016-17

5%

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

9%

65% percent of publishers that want to couple copyrighted textbooks with open materials

5 million how much congress recently set aside for an oer pilot

38 number of community colleges now using oer to redesign degree programs

… and they have concerns

so, will faculty attitudes change?

the key question for the future of oer is:

what does it take to get more professors to yes?

more college students are taking advantage of open educational resources—textbooks and course materials that are free and can be altered and repurposed. yet faculty adoption of oer, as it is known, is slow with significant barriers. for open-access materials to truly transform learning and teaching and help reduce educational costs for students, a greater effort may be needed to convince professors of its benefits.

more students are using oer …

but professors haven’t fully embraced it …

… and new players are supporting it

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

65% 9%

2015-16 2016-17

5%

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

9%

65% percent of publishers that want to couple copyrighted textbooks with open materials

5 million how much congress recently set aside for an oer pilot

38 number of community colleges now using oer to redesign degree programs

… and they have concerns

so, will faculty attitudes change?

the key question for the future of oer is:

what does it take to get more professors to yes?

more college students are taking advantage of open educational resources—textbooks and course materials that are free and can be altered and repurposed. yet faculty adoption of oer, as it is known, is slow with significant barriers. for open-access materials to truly transform learning and teaching and help reduce educational costs for students, a greater effort may be needed to convince professors of its benefits.

more students are using oer …

but professors haven’t fully embraced it …

… and new players are supporting it

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

65% 9%

2015-16 2016-17

5%

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

9%

65% percent of publishers that want to couple copyrighted textbooks with open materials

5 million how much congress recently set aside for an oer pilot

38 number of community colleges now using oer to redesign degree programs

… and they have concerns

so, will faculty attitudes change?

the key question for the future of oer is:

what does it take to get more professors to yes?

more college students are taking advantage of open educational resources—textbooks and course materials that are free and can be altered and repurposed. yet faculty adoption of oer, as it is known, is slow with significant barriers. for open-access materials to truly transform learning and teaching and help reduce educational costs for students, a greater effort may be needed to convince professors of its benefits.

more students are using oer …

but professors haven’t fully embraced it …

… and new players are supporting it

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

65% 9%

2015-16 2016-17

5%

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

9%

65% percent of publishers that want to couple copyrighted textbooks with open materials

5 million how much congress recently set aside for an oer pilot

38 number of community colleges now using oer to redesign degree programs

… and they have concerns

so, will faculty attitudes change?

the key question for the future of oer is:

what does it take to get more professors to yes?

more college students are taking advantage of open educational resources—textbooks and course materials that are free and can be altered and repurposed. yet faculty adoption of oer, as it is known, is slow with significant barriers. for open-access materials to truly transform learning and teaching and help reduce educational costs for students, a greater effort may be needed to convince professors of its benefits.

more students are using oer …

but professors haven’t fully embraced it …

… and new players are supporting it

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

65% 9%

2015-16 2016-17

5%

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

9%

65% percent of publishers that want to couple copyrighted textbooks with open materials

5 million how much congress recently set aside for an oer pilot

38 number of community colleges now using oer to redesign degree programs

… and they have concerns

so, will faculty attitudes change?

the key question for the future of oer is:

what does it take to get more professors to yes?

more college students are taking advantage of open educational resources—textbooks and course materials that are free and can be altered and repurposed. yet faculty adoption of oer, as it is known, is slow with significant barriers. for open-access materials to truly transform learning and teaching and help reduce educational costs for students, a greater effort may be needed to convince professors of its benefits.

more students are using oer …

but professors haven’t fully embraced it …

… and new players are supporting it

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

65% 9%

2015-16 2016-17

5%

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

9%

65% percent of publishers that want to couple copyrighted textbooks with open materials

5 million how much congress recently set aside for an oer pilot

38 number of community colleges now using oer to redesign degree programs

… and they have concerns

so, will faculty attitudes change?

the key question for the future of oer is:

what does it take to get more professors to yes?

more college students are taking advantage of open educational resources—textbooks and course materials that are free and can be altered and repurposed. yet faculty adoption of oer, as it is known, is slow with significant barriers. for open-access materials to truly transform learning and teaching and help reduce educational costs for students, a greater effort may be needed to convince professors of its benefits.

more students are using oer …

but professors haven’t fully embraced it …

… and new players are supporting it

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

65% 9%

2015-16 2016-17

5%

percent of faculty using open-access textbooks

9%

65% percent of publishers that want to couple copyrighted textbooks with open materials

5 million how much congress recently set aside for an oer pilot

38 number of community colleges now using oer to redesign degree programs

… and they have concerns

so, will faculty attitudes change?

the key question for the future of oer is:

what does it take to get more professors to yes?